Uber Marketplace

How and why do drivers earn extra?

We may offer extra earning opportunities to attract enough drivers when riders need them most.

Identifying the opportunities

Drivers may choose to pursue additional earning opportunities, when available, by driving at busy times and places, or by completing a set of trips over multiple days.

How are driver promotions determined?

Driver promotions vary based on market factors, such as forecasted rider demand and driver availability. Uber usually offers opportunities to earn extra to limit anticipated market imbalance, such as during rush hour.

Some of the features described on this page do not apply or are not available in California and in markets outside of the US. As we work to improve the marketplace, we may test functionality and pricing in ways not described on this page.
